

"YOU must strengthen your nerves with SANATOGEN"

"Revitalize your nerves by taking Sanatogen." That is what your doctor will advise you, when listlessness, lack of appetite, or fretful sleep are robbing you of your health and joy of life.

For physicians know that all these complaints have their roots in one and the same cause: weakness of the nerves. And it is only by strengthening your nerves, that you can regain your former health and vitality.

Strengthen your nerves with Sanatogen—the true tonic-food. Sanatogen contains the very elements that build bodily health and vital strength—phosphorus and proteid. Sanatogen will make you feel stronger, healthier and consequently happier—even after a short course.

"I never hesitate to recommend Sanatogen to my patients in case of nervous exhaustion, and it gives very beneficial results. I do not obtain such results with the usual tonics."

Writes a well-known English physician.

Over 25,000 physicians have given Sanatogen similar enthusiastic recommendations, because Sanatogen must do good. Start taking it to-day, then you will soon enjoy once again the feeling of radiant vitality and strength, that makes life worth living.

Arsenal Eliminated

Two Second Division teams, Bolton and Burnley, put two strong First Division contenders for the Cup (Everton and Manchester City) out of the competition. Arsenal went down by the odd goal in three at Wednesday and Preston was eliminated at West Bromwich by the only goal scored. The four teams left in the semi-final round are Bolton, Burnley, Sheffield Wednesday and West Bromwich.

Sunderland sent Blackburn away pointless to take second place in the League Table lying with Arsenal in points but the latter is a game in hand. At the other end of the Table more than half a dozen teams are struggling against relegation.

With two games in hand Bolton are a point behind Brentford in the Second Division, with West Ham holding on grimly.

The leaders of the Southern Section of the Third Division, Charlton, were held to a draw by Coventry and Reading, their nearest rivals were held at Torquay. In the Northern Section, Doncaster strengthened their claims by beating Walsall whereas Tranmere lost a valuable point at York, and Chester claimed two points from Halifax.

In the Scottish League Celtic, Aberdeen and Hamilton lost, but the Rangers took full points away from Falkirk and Hearts had to share the spoils at Motherwell.

TWICKENHAM RUGGER

Army Defeat The Navy

Twickenham, Mar. 2.

The Army to-day defeated the Royal Navy by a goal, a penalty goal, and a try (11 points) to a goal and a try (8 points) in their Triangular Tournament match at Twickenham.

Before the commencement of the game the teams were introduced to H.R.H. the Duke of York.

There was a sensational opening to the game, Lane scoring immediately for the Navy for Cosling to add the points.

The Army backs were very weak in their tackling, but, in spite of this, Novis scored for the Army in the 15th minute after an excellent bout of handling. The try was not converted.

Hammond gave the Navy a further lead when he crossed over for another unconverted try, but Hobbs followed with a try for the Army, which Sayers converted.

Just before the interval the Army took the lead when Sayers landed a penalty goal.

The Army were without D. A. Kendrew, the England skipper, who is injured. Their threequarters were, however, better and more constructive than the Navy's. Novis and Dean played splendidly.

THE AFFAIRS OF CELLINI

The Story Of A Great Lover, A Great Artist—The Most Charming Rascal Of All Time

(By LEWIS ALLEN BROWNE)

"Go into hiding for a day," she ordered. "I shall argue the Duke into postponing action."

Benvenuto Cellini, a Florentine of the 16th century, was famed as a goldsmith, feared as a fighter and notorious as a lover. Believing his only true love, Della, to be dead, he finds her serving as a Lady-in-Waiting to the Duchess of Florence, just as the Duchess decides to make Benvenuto her lover. Because of his many killings, he is condemned to be hanged, and a noble-born girl of Venice is expected to make grave charges, but will not. The Duchess plots to save Benvenuto and then, word comes to the Duke that he has almost fatally assaulted his nephew. To lay hands on a de Medici, is death.

"Indeed, he shall hang," Ottaviano echoed, delighted that at last he could have Benvenuto hanged, "for your Excellency has but a moment before sworn that his next offence should be his death warrant!"

Duke Alessandro sighed and sat down again, sniffing at one of the more pungent of his collection of perfumes.

"By all the demons in Hades," he cried, like a fretful child, "I shall never get to the stables to see the new foal." He turned to the guard.

"Well, well—speak up. Why should Benvenuto assault my nephew? What about it? Where is my nephew now?"

"In bed, Excellency. In bed with splints on his nose, plasters on his lip, leeches on his eye and noxious medicines in his stomach."

The Duke passed a scent bottle before his face to hide a smile. He had never liked his nephew, and the guard's description told him that Count Maffio must, indeed, be a funny sight at this moment.

"Well, well, am I to guess or shall you tell me all that happened?"

"The Count and one of his guards were set upon by Benvenuto, who killed the poor fellow and wrenched the sword from your nephew's hand. He then, so I am told by another guard who was an eye-witness, threw the Count into the muck of the filthy street, jumped upon his back and rammed his face with great violence through the muck to the cobblestones!"

Two Fies

"Unspeakable!" Ottaviano growled, wanting to shout with delight. "There must have been some reason for this," Alessandro observed.

"Benvenuto claimed that Count Maffio once publicly called him a nasty little fly, at a time when Benvenuto was alone and the Count had a dozen armed friends about him, and said that he should be exterminated. In any event, Excellency, this firebrand Benvenuto was not satisfied with this horrible beating, he caught two flies from the gutter and forced Count Maffio to swallow them!"

"To swallow them?" Alessandro cried, in amazement.

"To swallow them—both of them," the guard repeated, solemnly.

"Haw—haw! Ahem, I mean—what I mean—that is, who ever heard of such a thing?" and the Duke tried to cover up the fact that he had laughed at the thought of his unpopular nephew being made to swallow two flies.

"Imagine," Ottaviano said, craftily, noting the Duke's inclination to laugh, "a de Medici being so humiliated! Imagine anyone daring to lay violent hands on any member of Europe's greatest and most honourable House!"

The Duke, perforce, rating himself as the greatest of the de Medicis, had to agree. He jumped up from his throne.

"Report to the Count that the dastard shall be hanged, forthwith! This is the end—search the city for him—Wait—fetch me my sword!"

The guard rode back to the city to make his report. He had to be clever about it, for Count Maffio had ordered him to wait for a while and then kill Benvenuto so that the Count could claim the honour of having avenged himself.

Upon reaching the Count's home the guard came in with a pretense of being angry.

"Some cursed tale-bearer, Sire, has spoiled my pleasure," the guard cried, excitedly.

"What with your pleathure to me?" the Count lisped, through his bandaged lips.

"Some numb-pate has told your august uncle, the Duke of Florence, about Benvenuto's assault, and he has ordered the man hanged at once. It would have made me so happy to have had the pleasure of running him through his cowardly heart!"

Count Maffio became furious at this, but he believed the lie his guard told, and finally managed a painful smile.

At the Summer palace a serving man had brought the Duke's sword, as commanded, and buckled it on Ottaviano, smiling with delight, started to call a guard.

"But wait," Alessandro said, suddenly, "I had forgotten my little mare, Venus, and her foal that I have not seen. First I shall go to the stables. Do nothing until I return. I want the pleasure of being present at this hanging."

Put Off

"It would take but a short time, Excellency, and then you would have the day to yourself."

"I have been put off enough with this petty thing and that, and a silly girl telling a silly story by the Saints, Ottaviano, imagine being in a dark rose arbor with that little beauty?"

"Imagine a mere goldsmith attacking a de Medici!" Ottaviano replied.

"I shall not be put off! I am going to the stables—here, unfasten this sword, it is in the way when I go among my horses."

"But—"

"Will you be quiet, Ottaviano! First I go to the stables."

"I can attend to it easily, your Excellency."

"Must I beg of you? Can't I do as I wish? I said that, when we attend to Benvenuto I want to be there myself and see that it is properly done. Await me."

Ottaviano had nothing else to do other than obey and pace about the court and cool his heels. But Counsellor Polverino became quite busy. He secretly dispatched a note to the Duchess, telling the messenger to ride fast and overtake her if possible. Polverino was a close friend of the Duchess, plotting greatly thereby.

Polverino's messenger reached the Duchess just outside the city gate as she was returning to the city palace. She read it but gave no sign of her emotions. To the messenger she said, "Tell him, secretly, that it shall be attended to in proper order, like all affairs of state."

The messenger bowed and kept a straight face, although he had read the note, since Polverino had had no time to affix a seal of wax.

The Duchess believed that no time was to be lost and she went with two guards, to the shop of Benvenuto. She would not be so indiscreet as to enter unattended.

Benvenuto had completed the first plate when she entered. The guards remained at the door. She went to the work bench to see the plate and its beauty amazed her. Doubly, now, she wanted to save Benvenuto from the gallows—she must have that set of plates, and she was more enamored of him than ever.

As she examined the plate she told him what had happened. "Go in hiding for a day," she ordered. "I will argue the Duke into postponing action until I have the plates. Let your apprentices know how to reach you, word will come through him."

He bowed low and for the benefit of the distant guards said, "I shall push the work forward with all speed, your Excellency." In a whisper he said, "I obey."

The Duchess and her guards were not gone ten minutes before Benvenuto was on his way to the house of a friend who had often secreted him. Only his apprentice, Ascanio, knew where to find him.

Alessandro, at this time, was out in his stables, admiring the foal of his favourite mare, Venus. His hostlers had much to report to him—one of his best stallions had been injured in his stall and the Duke, extremely fond of his horses, superintended the care of the animal.

Then came a discussion of the coming hunt, with his stable master. After that the Duke discovered that he was hungry. He returned to the castle and Ottaviano believed that at last they would be off to find Benvenuto and hang him, but nothing of the sort.

"I'll see him hanged, all in good time, but my appetite cannot wait and I have no doubt but what he would appreciate the delay," the Duke said.

Ottaviano started to protest and to storm.

"I shall have no further need of you, this day," the Duke told him with a cold dignity that always warned those who knew his temper, to quietly efface themselves. "But Excellency—"

"Another day will do as well. Besides, I want to inquire into this matter. There are two sides to some things."

Ottaviano departed in an ugly mood, feeling that Benvenuto was blessed by all the luck in the world, and at the same moment, bowing by all the Saints, aware that Benvenuto must die.

It was late when the Duke finished his repast and again the Duchess was announced. As she entered he gave her a rather short greeting.

"My Lord, it occurred to me that despite the story of the young daughter of the Venetian House of Vacci, we should send some word of sympathy with a slight hint of apology."

"No apology is needed!"

"Since affairs between Venice and Florence are already somewhat strained it would be the diplomatic thing to do. However, my Lord, after all, that comes within your province. It was a mere suggestion. I having the welfare of your city at heart."

He handed it to her, wrapped in fine linen. The Duchess had taken the finished plate with her when she left Benvenuto's shop, having this one thing in mind. Her suggestion about a note of mild apology to the House of Vacci was but a mind.

"Send Antonio," she ordered. The serving youth came in. "The plate," she commanded.

RETURN OF THE SAAR
TO GERMANYNation's Leader Visits
Territory[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

Saarbrücken, Mar. 1.

The culminating point of this momentous day when the events moved with kaleidoscopic rapidity was reached when Chancellor Hitler arrived here, unexpectedly on Friday early in the afternoon, being acclaimed with indescribable enthusiasm by the population as he motored slowly through the streets which were lined with solid ranks of Stormtroops behind which immense crowds greeted the Fuehrer with shouts of exultation.

Hitler had taken off from Berlin in an airplane shortly before 8 o'clock on Friday morning accompanied by Reichminister Frank, the German Minister to Vienna and former Vice-Chancellor, von Papen, and other high officials while Reichminister Hess started simultaneously with his own plane. After a record flight, the machines landed at Mannheim from where the Chancellor and his party proceeded by motor to the Saar territory border which they crossed shortly after noon. The news of the Fueh-rer's arrival had meanwhile spread like wildfire through the Saarland and in all villages and hamlets through which the string of motors passed, great crowds had collected hailing Hitler with cheers while the Church bells also pealed out a happy welcome.

AT SAARBRUECKEN

The outskirts of Saarbrücken were reached at 1 p.m. whence dense crowds standing in the pouring rain which, however, failed to abate their enthusiasm, forced the cars to slow down to a crawling pace. After driving through the town, the Chancellor proceeded to the Hotel Excelsior where a detachment of his bodyguard was drawn up and where he was received by Reichminister Frick, Saar Commissioner Buerckel and other high officials.

At 2.30 Hitler and his entourage went to the town hall square where the Chancellor took the oath of office as a National-Socialist organisation headed by squads of Prussian and palatinate police followed by long columns of the German front organisation which bore the brunt of the struggle for the Saar. After the parade, Hitler was completely wet through but his features shone with pleasure and gratification as he made his way to the townhall for the reception of the Committee of Three which took place at 5.30 p.m. The chairman of the Committee, Baron Aloisi and the two other members, the Argentine Ambassador to Rome, Cantilo, and the Spanish Minister, Lopez Olivan were accompanied by a high official of the Italian foreign ministry, Biancheri and Embassy to Rome, Oneto Astanga.

In a brief speech Hitler expressed in the name of the German people his sincere thanks and appreciation to the Committee for their impartial work.

After inscribing his name in the "golden book of the town-hall," the Chancellor received a deputation from his old party of comrades from the Saar with whom he held a long conversation. At 6 o'clock crowds had converged on the big square in front of the townhall for an impressive mass demonstration for the Saar population on the occasion of its liberation from foreign rule. The demonstration was opened by Reichminister and Deputy Leader Hess with a speech in which he stated that this, the day on which the Saarland is returning to its motherland, constituted one of the happiest and proudest days in Germany's history.

A HAPPY DAY

After several speakers had addressed the crowd, the Chancellor thanked the Saarlanders for keeping their promise given on the occasion of two mass demonstrations held in 1933 and 1934 near Ruedesheim and at Coblenz on the Rhine when 10,000 Saarlanders had vowed in a mighty chorus to stay loyal to Germany in the hour of its decision. "This is not only a happy day for Germany," Hitler continued, "but for the whole of Europe. It was one of the most blessed decisions when the date for the plebiscite was finally fixed and when this region, which easily might have become the eternal bone of contention, was afforded the opportunity of proclaiming its adherence to the German Fatherland, since the Saar's return to Germany may perhaps lead to overcoming the crisis from which two great nations are suffering. We all hope that through this act, capable justice and the restoration of relationships between France and Germany will be governed by natural commonsense. It must be possible for two great peoples to join hands and to cooperate in alleviating distress which threatens the ruin of Europe.
This day ought also to be a lesson for those who imagine that a nation can be deprived of its inner-most feelings and characteristics by application of force. In the long run the call of race is stronger than paper documents and through your loyalty you have lightened my work which, as God is my witness, has no other object than to make Germany free and happy again. When I now consider the result of this 15 years fight for the creation of a nation and the Reich I thank heaven that our efforts have been blessed, for to-day I can welcome you back home in the name of this nation and the Reich. I ask you to bring the virtues you have preserved during the 15 years of separation into the new Reich. Believe in the completion of our task and believe in the greatness of our people, and bring the loyalty you have hitherto with you into new Germany. In this evening hour in which we are assembled here we do not want merely to give way to joy but also to determine aims and work which we will have to accomplish in the future. Our aim is a new Germany which must be peaceful as it is strong and pure. For this Germany for which we are struggling we vow to give our lives to our last breath."

LESSON SERMON

First Church of Christ, Scientist,
Hong Kong

"Christ Jesus" was the subject of the Lesson Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 3, 1935.

The Golden Text was "As ye have therefore received Christ
Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him:
For in him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily." (Coloesians 2: 6, 9).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod the King, behold, there came wise men from the East to Jerusalem, saying, where is he that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him. When they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy. And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him." (Matthew 2: 1, 2, 10, 11).

The Lesson Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The advent of Jesus of Nazareth marked the first century of the Christian era, but the Christ is without beginning of years or end of days. Jesus was the highest human concept of the perfect man. He was inseparable from Christ, the Messiah, the divine idea of God outside the flesh. This enabled Jesus to demonstrate his control over matter. Angels announced to the Wisemen of old this dual appearing, and angels whisper it through faith, to the hungering heart in every age." (p.
333, p. 482).

EDDIE CANTOR LET LOOSE

"Roman Scandals"
At The Star

"Roman Scandals." Eddie Cantor's fourth annual screen musical comedy for Samuel Goldwyn comes to the Star Theatre to-day.

Ruth Etting, Gloria Stuart, David Manners, Edward Arnold, Verree Teasdale, and this year's crop of Goldwyn girls are all to be seen in the newest Cantor carnival of fun. George Kaufman and Robert Sherwood wrote "Roman Scandals" as a successor to Eddie's "The Kid from Spain" of last year.

Eddie will be seen as a wistful, brow-beaten lad from West Rome, Oklahoma, who finds himself in the Rome of the Caesars and involved in breath-taking adventures among the beautiful slave girls, the thundering chariots and the conspiracies of the Imperial court.

The good people back in West Rome are a little uncertain about Eddie, as he trundles along in his grocery wagon, talking familiarly with his clumping nag, Julia. Most of them consider him a little looney in a harmless way. Not only does he talk to his horses, but he gives his groceries away to anyone who seems hungry. And then, too, he spends hours day-dreaming in the town's museum among the statues of the heroes of classic antiquity.

This latter pursuit so completely takes hold of his imagination, that he is carried back to ancient Rome where he becomes involved in a plot to rescue the beautiful captive Princess Sylvia from the lustful clutches of the Emperor. After a series of mad misadventures he is finally made food-taster in the Imperial household and becomes a court favourite—especially with the voluptuous Empress, who entangles him in a plot to poison her wicked consort.

In an attempt to aid the Princess Sylvia and her lover who are trying to escape and save them from a conspiracy against them, Eddie tears after them in a thundering chariot—with the Emperor's soldiers on his heels—or rather his wheels. But Eddie comes through—and is transported back to West Rome, where he is seen spiritedly recounting his adventures to Julia.

Al Dublin and Harry Warren wrote the songs for this United Artists release and Busby Berkeley staged the dances. Frank Tuttle directed "Roman Scandals" for Samuel Goldwyn.

FINE DRAMA AT THE QUEEN'S

Evelyn Prentice

Those who have seen the William Powell-Myrna Loy combination on the screen will be glad to hear that they are back with us again—at the Queen's Theatre—in "Evelyn Prentice," the new Cosmopolitan Production which was shown for the first time yesterday.

As may be expected when two such versatile players are together the film provides entertainment of a very high standard. "Evelyn Prentice" is unique in that it provides two mysteries in one picture. As an amateur detective William Powell in the "Thin Man" was superb. In his latest, however, he may be described as having excelled himself in the role of a criminal lawyer, and what better assurance can be asked for a pleasant time in the theatre?

Myrna Loy also deserves the highest praise for the way in which she executes a difficult role while Rosaline Russell the New York stage star provides a new type of screen vamp, something different to the "Come up and see me sometime" variety.

Preceding the feature film are two excellent shorts which served to whet one's appetite for "Evelyn Prentice," while the Newerel brings to us some of the scenes in the new world famous Hauptmann Trial—O.M.O.

ROYAL BALINESE DANCERS

To Appear At
The Queen's

The coming of the "Balinese Dancers" will be a unique event in local history, as this is the first time that a company of these high polished dancers will perform outside the Dutch East Indies, and this tour will be the only one they will make.

The Balinese dancers in their native country do their dances in order to bring the show up to European standard, the leaders of this troupe have gone to great expense to provide those taking part with some of the most beautiful costumes, scenery etc.

The company left Bali last June and have been touring Java, Sumatra and the Straits for the past eight months.

The leading lady is Ratu Idja, who has been dancing since the age of six. She is assisted by Dewi Ratna, also a very prominent dancer.

Ratu Idja performs the famous Fan dance and the Gong dance, which last one portrays animal life. One of the interesting items of the programme is the famous Kris dance, as performed in Bali by the Sang Hyang dancers. The dancers being all virgins, are put into a trance by the Temple priest, and as he presses the kris into their virgin hands, the dance begins, first slow then faster and faster, until the dancers, portraying the wild abandon of human sacrifice, collapse one by one entirely exhausted, but unharmed.

The high priestess (Ratu Idja) who in the meantime has been imploring the God Indra to forgive her past offences, feels that she can no longer escape her fate. Hesitating and with trembling fingers she takes the Holy Kris, which in this particular instance proves her shame and uncleanness to the gathered worshippers. And the wild, fast dance ends in a dramatic climax when she runs up to the feet of Indra and stabs herself with the Holy kris.

Other numbers of the richly varied programme are: The Dance of the Priestess of the Holy Pura, the Dance of the Temple Virgins, the Worship of Durga, the Wife of Ciwa, Moonlight on the Borobudur, the Amboina War Dance, etc.

The Company is expected to arrive to-day and will open a short season at the Queen's Theatre with a gala premiere on Wednesday night March 6 at 9.30 p.m.

Booking plans are now open.

"THE KEY"

Coming On Thursday
To The Alhambra

William Powell's latest stellar vehicle for Warner Bros., "The Key," which comes to the Alhambra Theatre on Thursday next, is said to be the most thrillingly dramatic production in which that star has yet appeared.

The play by R. Gore-Brown and J. L. Hardy, on which the picture is based, carried an abundance of thrills, set as it was in the background of Dublin during the last decade, when Irish patriots had aroused the country to flaming revolt.

The plot carries an unusual love triangle in which two British officers, engaged in the suppression of the rebellion, battle for the love of a woman who is the wife of one but had been the sweetheart of the other.

William Powell has the role of an English officer, a reckless daredevil fighter, a gay dog with no scruples about women. He has had an affair with Nora, a part played by Edna Best, who later married one of his fellow officers.

Miss Best battles valiantly to overcome her infatuation for the dashing captain, but when her husband, a part enacted by Colin Clive, is called away on duty, she finds her emotions are too strong for her. The unusual outcome of this triangular love affair is revealed in smashing and surprising climax.

Hobart Cavanaugh, as the gay captain's dog robber, supplies the comedy element to set off the more dramatic moments of the production. Halliwell Hobbs has the role of the English general in charge of the forces in Dublin while Donald Crisp plays the role of the Irish leader.

Others in the cast include Henry O'Neill, Phil Regan, J.M. Kerrigan and Arthur Aylesworth as Irish patriots, Arthur Treacher, an English lieutenant, and Maxine Doyle, Gertrude Short and Dawn O'Day, three pretty Irish lassies.

The cast as a whole is a talented one and carries several English and Irish actors as well as American players. Michael Curtiz directed the picture from the screen play by Laird Doyle.

"That goldsmith, Benvenuto Cellini," she said, "has finished a plate. He sent it over for my approval."

"Blister his soul! My Lady, do you know that the fend has nigh unto murdered my nephew, Count Maffio!"

"Saints preserve us—what will the fool do next! Oh, well, my Lord, you were never over-fond of the weak-brained fellow."

"But to lay violent hands on a de Medicis—any de Medicis!"

"Yes, to be sure. But since the plate is delivered, see if you think I were right in approving it and ordering the others."

She unwrapped the golden plate and noted that he had just finished eating. He would be in a more genial mood, she knew.

The Duke of Florence took the golden plate in his hands and exclaimed with delight, as it's marvellous beauty struck his gaze.

"A work of art—a superior work of art, my Lady!" he cried.

"I do not believe any potentates in all the world would have such service as this, if only the fool goldsmith didn't have to be hanged. How those Milanese would gasp if we could but have it on our table when we dine them!"

The Duke was examining the plate with appreciative eyes.

"I would have given a thousand crowns if this Benvenuto had not to hang until the plates were finished."

"By the Olympian gods," he cried, affectionately patting the plate, "Benvenuto shall live, as I declared before, until these plates are finished. Then I shall delight in watching him hang!"

The Duchess decided to go back to the city palace. Once back she sent word by a trusted servant, to Ascanio, Benvenuto's apprentice, that all was well and he was to come forth from wherever it might be he was hiding, and work at once upon the plates as there was little time before the reception at which they must be used.

The next day Benvenuto was singing gaily at his work. The plates had again saved his life and he intended to keep back a couple until the eleventh hour, when he hoped to flee to Vienna with his beloved Della, to remain for all time.

There was no singing by the chancellor Ottaviano the next morning. He was at best a man of mean disposition as well as a plotter against the Duke. And the taunts of his mistress because he could not get rid of Benvenuto, and put her brother at the head of the designing of coins, were driving him wild.

And so a couple of weeks passed. But at last the Duke's nephew, Count Maffio, then able to be about, came to him and asked, sarcastically, if he intended to pension the dog, Benvenuto, for half killing him.

"He shall die this day!" the Duke promised, and he set about making preparations.

Benvenuto believed himself to be quite safe from all harm while working on the plates, and would never have believed that plans were already afoot to hang him before sunset on that day.

Will the Duchess be able to step in and save Benvenuto's neck from the noose. What will happen if they surprise him at his work and endeavour to take him to the hangman? Read to-morrow's tense instalment.

COMING TO THE ALHAMBRA

"The Last Round-Up"
Opens To-morrow

Cowboys on location with Paramount's "The Last Round-Up" troupe gave Randolph Scott his first singing lesson.

The star of this out-door romance, coming to-morrow to the Alhambra, had to lead his band of men in bringing to the screen, for the first time, the popular song, "The Last Round-Up" featured throughout the picture.

Paramount purchased the tune that is becoming a national radio hit to inject a singing cowboy touch into the picture. Scott knew the tune, but the cowboy's coached him on how to put over the saddle interpretation of the out-door hit.

"The Last Round-Up" a screen adaptation of Zane Grey's "The Border Legion" features, in addition to Scott, Monte Blue, Barbara Fritchley, Fred Kohler and Fuzzy Knight.

Scott finds himself a member of the ruthless outlaw band after he has been wrongly accused of a murder. He falls in love with a girl captive and through a series of three-cornered battles with Monte Blue and Fred Kohler, the two lovers are finally free to carry on their romance.

THE WHITE PARADE

Showing To-day At
The King's

A tribute paid to the nursing profession by the late President Theodore Roosevelt, following a siege in a hospital, provides the inspiration and theme for Jesse L. Lasky's "The White Parade," the tremendous Fox Film production which is showing to-day at the King's Theatre.

First film to glorify America's "young ladies in white," "The White Parade" was made at the Fox Film studios under the direction of Irving Cummings, with Loretta Young and John Boles in the leading roles.

In keeping with the theme and spirit of the production, "The White Parade" is dedicated to the memory of the immortal Florence Nightingale, founder of modern nursing, and the ideal and pattern of those who pursue this profession.

In this tribute to nurses, Roosevelt said in part:

"It is almost worth while to be sick, to meet such people and see the splendid work they are doing in the hospitals. Take the nurses, clean, healthy, young women, full of life and spirit. At an age when their thoughts might be devoted to pleasure, they do the hardest kind of work, much of it unpleasant, nearly all of it depressing and not for pay, but because they want to fit themselves for service."

"Thank God I always regarded American womanhood, and if any one asks you what I think of the nursing profession, tell them I said no, they are not angels, they are too practical for that, but they are trumps, every one of them!"

Leading organization of nurses, including the American Nurses Association, have praised the work of Producer Lasky and his staff in bringing "The White Parade" to the screen.

The screen-play, "The White Parade," was written by Rain James and Jesse Lasky, Jr. from a novel by the former, and with adaptation by Sonya Levien and Ernest Pascal.

In the cast supporting Loretta Young and John Boles are Dorothy Wilson, Muriel Kirkland, Frank Conroy, Astrid Allwyn, Joyce Compton, Jane Darwell, Sara Haden, Polly Ann Young, Frank Melton and Walter Johnson.

"The White Parade" has been acclaimed by preview audiences as a deeply stirring human document a story of "the girls nobody knows," the student nurses.

COLLEGEPrize Distribution
Day

Third third annual prize distribution day of the Chung Nan College was held in the presence of a very large gathering of students, parents and friends at the King's Theatre yesterday morning.

Mr. Chan Kwan Po, B.A., Official Translator of the Hong Kong University and Ex-Inspector of Education Department, F.M.S. Government, kindly distributed the certificates and prizes to the successful candidates, and complimented the College on the success of the year's work.

Mr. Chung Wai Sun, B.A., Principal of the College, reviewed a year of great progress, the school roll having increased rather considerably, since the last term of the year.

After the prize-distribution, a cinema show and an enjoyable musical concert, rendered by the students of the College, wound up the proceedings of the enjoyable day.

The Annual Report

In presenting the Annual Report on the work of the College for the last year, the Principal Mr. Chung Wai Sun said:

Ladies and Gentlemen:—The year under review has been both a changeful and eventful year. Owing to the abolition of the Senior and Junior Local Examinations and the initiation by the H.K. University Authorities of the School Certificate Examination, the school year was shortened so that it ended in July and the new school year began from September 1934. Eager to learn and anxious to obtain a certificate from some well-known university the Class I students earnestly asked the College to provide them with an opportunity of taking some examination run by universities in England. To comply with their wishes the College made a move had not been made by any school in the Colony for the last twenty years, namely, the presentation of students to sit for the Cambridge Senior Local Examination, now known as the Cambridge School Certificate Examination. Arrangements were made, through the Education Department, with the Cambridge Syndicate for the Examination to be held in Hong Kong. Thanks are due to Mr. A. O. Brown, Senior Inspector of Schools, for his kind advice on many difficult points. Twelve candidates of Chung Nan College sat for the Examination in December last year. The results are not yet published.

The average daily attendance of the College was 266 with the maximum of 300 and a minimum of 223.

As usual the staff consisted of eight full-time teachers in charge of eight classes, two vernacular teachers, two special-subject teachers and one part-time undergraduate teacher who was engaged during the season to lighten the burden of the upper class teachers. All upper school teachers are university graduates.

Curriculum

The "morning school" system was adopted throughout the year so that more time could be found in the afternoon for improving the standard of the upper school students and for training up the candidates for the Cambridge Examination. New apparatus were installed and more periods were inserted in the weekly time table for each subject. The time tables of the lower classes were overhauled. Since the announcement of the School Certificate Examination syllabus the subjects of physics and chemistry have become obligatory subjects. In order to meet the new requirements the college laboratory, started in 1931, was greatly enlarged, the addition and duplication of apparatus.

Sports

In April 1934 the College volleyball team joined the inter-school open league but the result did not come up to expectation. We are sadly in need of a playground for practice. Endeavours to obtain from Government a playground or some wide open space have so far been unsuccessful and though conscious of the handicap, the College continues to encourage sports. In June several students entered the Inter-Scholastic Sports and carried off the 2nd Prize of the 1,600 metres Race and also the 2nd Prize of the 200 metres Free Style in Swimming and the 3rd Prize of the 1,500 yds Free Style.

Scouting was carried on vigorously under the fine leadership

OBITUARY

Death Of Former Millionaire

The death occurred somewhat suddenly at his residence, No. 18 Caroline Hill Road, on Saturday night of Mr. Astorjo. Hilario Tavares, a well-known member of the Portuguese community. The late Mr. Tavares was 60 years of age, and his death came somewhat unexpectedly for although he had been in ill-health for some time he was able to attend to his business up to Saturday. In the evening, about 9 o'clock, he had a heart seizure, and medical aid was immediately summoned, but despite all that could be done for him, he passed away.

Born in Macao, the late Mr. Tavares had had an adventurous career. He was at one time a corporal in the Macao Garrison and saw service in the native insurrection in Timor. During this campaign he was wounded, and in 1897 he resigned from the military to take up a commercial career. In 1913 he amassed the phenomenal fortune of $18,000,000, and his sudden rise to wealth had gained him the nickname of "Propheta" (Prophet) from the Portuguese community. During this time, the late Mr. Tavares donated large sums to charity, practically every charitable institution in the Colony having benefited. Apart from his philanthropic work in this direction, the late Mr. Tavares, who was of a kind and reserved disposition, also took a great interest in the welfare of his community, and always extended a helping hand to those in need.

However, in 1922 he lost the main portion of his fortune, and up to the time of his death he was still trying to regain his lost wealth, an effort which, unfortunately, met with little success.

He leaves behind a widow, six sons and three daughters, and to them the deepest sympathy is extended.

The Funeral

The funeral took place at the Catholic Cemetery yesterday, the Rev. Page conducted the burial service. The chief mourners were the sons and the son-in-law, Mr. C. L. Rocha, and those present included Messrs. A. C. Gomes, F. Laurel, M. H. Bux, A. Souza, F. Laurel, L. B. Kitchell, E. N. Rocha, J. de Jesus, J. Y. Tavares, D. M. Vieira, and H. Leung.

Apart from those from the family, quite a number of wreaths were laid on the graveside, including those from Mr. and Mrs. Aycock and family, Mrs. Bowen and family, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Rocha, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. da Rocha, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Chu, V. A. C., J. R. H. and L. M. L. Mr. and Mrs. Oles and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Fernandez, Mr. C. S. Ho, Messrs. F. J. F. Elms and M. H. Mr. Ng Man Hoi Suspicion of suicide is attached to the death of Mr. Ng Man Hoi, the comprador of the Messageries Maritimes, whose body was washed ashore on Thursday afternoon at Kennedy Town.

It appears that Mr. Ng left his office, apparently in good spirits, a few minutes after 1 p.m. on Thursday. At 4.30 p.m. on the same day his body was washed ashore at Kennedy Town.

Mr. Ng joined the Messageries Maritimes Company in December, 1924, as comprador and was respected by everyone with whom he came in contact. He was a member of the local Compradore Association and of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce. He leaves a wife and three children.

The funeral took place on Saturday and was attended by the Company's staff and many well-known Chinese business men in the Colony.

THEFTS OF RADIATOR
CAPS

Cheung Sheung-hi, a 27-year-old life banishee from Singapore, was on Saturday sentenced to 12 weeks' hard labour by Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy for the theft of two radiator caps and one petrol tank cap, from cars Nos. 2574 and 3913, belonging to Messrs. A. Wust and Franz Tolle, respectively, of Longsight Villas.

The defendant pleaded guilty to the charges. When asked if there was anything known about him, Sergeant Kinnear said that he had a clear Colony police record, but he was a life banishee from Singapore in 1933.

Constable Commended. Frankly admitting that he did give an Indian constable, No. B616, a dollar as a bribe, Li Sing, a stall-keeper, was fined $15 by Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court on Saturday. Mr. Wynne-Jones also commended Teja Singh, Indian constable No. B616, on his honesty.

"If you come before me for stealing again, I will send you to the Supreme Court," remarked Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court on Saturday when he sentenced Chug Kam, a 30-year-old unemployed with 10 previous convictions, to three months' hard labour for being found in a masked at Mosque Street Junction for an unlawful purpose.

board who saw him last four hours before the discovery of dead body. On Thursday the cabin boy went to call the deceased for dinner and not being responded to entered the room only to find him dead.

The Police met the boat on arrival on Friday and after completing investigations had the body removed to the mortuary. The body after being questioned was allowed to go.

The Police are awaiting the results of the post-mortem examination. Detective Sgt. Davis is in charge of investigation.

Accused was also ordered to be under police supervision for two years.

Sentence of six months' hard labour was imposed on Kwan Fong, a 26-year-old unemployed, by Mr. A. W. G. H. Grantham at the Kowloon Magistracy on Saturday when he appeared on a charge of indecently assaulting Li Kiu, a 21-year-old married woman, on the hillside above Kowloon City on Tuesday last.

The theft of 60 cents caused Leung Shing, a 26-year-old unemployed with four previous convictions, to be sentenced to six months' hard labour by Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Central Magistracy on Saturday.

Over 250 members and friends of the Craigengower Cricket Club enjoyed their annual Bachelors' Ball at the clubhouse, Happy Valley, on Saturday night. The hall was artistically decorated and presented a picturesque and animated scene. Dancing was maintained up to a late hour.

Dinner and refreshments were served on the lawn. Among those noticed at the dance were Mr. and Mrs. J. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Gomes, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Barry, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. The success of the function was largely due to the committee in charge, which comprised of Messrs. E. Bass, W. Allen, F. K. Moody, F. Hodgkin, G. Gunn, H. L. Fox and A. B. Hanson.

BRITISH EMPIRE & CHINA TRADE FAIR

Government Promise Support

A British Empire & China Trade Fair is being organised to take place in Hong Kong this year. It will be held on the space of open ground to East of the Peninsula Hotel, at the corner of Nathan and Salisbury Roads, where a special semi-permanent building will be erected. This space has been granted, rent free, for the purpose by the Hong Kong Government.

The Fair is to open on Monday, December 2nd, and the final day will be Saturday, December 28th.

DOMINIONS' HELP ANTICIPATED

This project has the entire sympathy of the Hong Kong Government and its practical support. In addition to the granting of the free use of the valuable site, it is making a cash grant of $2,000 to assist the enterprise. The Governments of New Zealand, Australia, Africa, India, Canada and Great Britain have also been advised, and it is hoped that a very encouraging response will be forthcoming.

The time is ripe for this enterprise and Hong Kong has here a great opportunity which must not be allowed to slip.

This is an age of Fairs and Exhibitions, and they are to the big manufacturing and distributing centres of to-day what the market town is to the rural area.

The British Empire & China Trade Fair aims at enabling British and Chinese merchants to come together to see what they can offer one another. Times have changed and the days are long past when upcountry trade consisted of receiving, regularly as clockwork, orders from foreign firms for certain Chinese products, and from regular Chinese clients for certain Western goods.

Business with China is to be had, but it has to be searched for, and enterprising competitors are getting in touch with the Chinese buyer and seeking to meet his requirements.

Nothing will do more to engage the interest of the Chinese and British buyers than a Fair in an attractive centre like Hong Kong. Instead of buying by correspondence, or on a traveller's visit, they will be able to come and see what each other has to offer, to compare prices and quality, and to get in personal touch with each other.

This Fair will be modelled on the British Industries Fair held in England every year, and will therefore follow the most up-to-date lines. Not only samples and the usual stall exhibits will be shown, but also films, models and appropriate catalogues and literature will be distributed. A feature of the arrangements will be a special Interpretation Service for Chinese visitors, and conferences and addresses will be specially arranged.

Moreover, as customary at all Fairs, every effort will be made to provide the usual outside amusements and attractions for leisure hours, thus enabling both Chinese and foreign visitors to combine business and pleasure. It is hoped that special fares and facilities will be obtained from the Shipping Companies and Railways to attract visitors to Hong Kong from the neighbouring towns and countries.

The advantages to be gained by the Colony from the Fair should be considerable; hotels and shops will benefit by the influx of visitors; the Shipping Companies will book extra passengers and freight; and even the transport of the exhibits of machinery and other "heavy lines" will provide business by no means negligible in these days. Amusement caterers of all kinds will also reap a harvest.

One has only turn to the history of the last 80 years to see what Industrial Fairs and Exhibitions have meant to Europe and America. Since the Prince Consort, whose services to Britain are now being appreciated, organised the Great Exhibition in 1854, at Hyde Park, the movement has grown steadily. One calls to mind the White City at Shepherds Bush, the Wembley Exhibition, the recent French Colonial Exhibition at Paris, and the Chicago World Fair, while Olympia is to all intents and purposes, London's permanent Fair and Exhibition.

It seems that sooner or later there must be a big permanent Trade Fair in South China. The organisation of Chinese trade on modern lines makes this necessary, and it is the aim of the organisers to make this Fair the forerunner of a regular event, and the Colony is going to derive great commercial benefit thereby as Hong Kong has every chance to make itself the scene of the Fair that South China needs. If this attempt is the success it is hoped to be, it will be one of the big Fairs of the world.

Hong Kong is the great meeting place of the two currents of trade, and the natural "exchange and mart of South China." It is the financial and distributing centre, and, above all, it is the deep sea port for South China. Ocean-going ships call here to meet the junks and steamers from the Delta Towns and the West River. A most important Railway in South China has its terminus in the Colony, and thus the whole transport system, by water, and by rail, converges upon Hong Kong.

This prosperous, beautiful and well-governed Colony is, therefore, the natural setting for a big Industrial Fair.

Two Empire Fairs have already been held in the past in commemoration of Empire Day. They excited general local interest, but there was no permanent organisation, and because of the lack of funds, and the fact that the work had to be done voluntarily, the event was allowed to lapse. Now the Fair is being run on purely commercial lines.

A great deal of work is entailed, and finance will be required, as those who have read about Fairs, or been to them, will readily appreciate. It is not the object of the organisers to make profits out of this Fair, but as a great British Advertising Agency in the East, with eleven years' association with these Markets, they want to prove that such a Fair will be of immense benefit, and enhance the prosperity of the Colony. They therefore urge the merchants and manufacturers' Agents in Hong Kong to give it their whole-hearted support and ensure its success. They have every reason to believe that the manufacturers abroad take advantage of this Event. Promises of support have already been received from New Zealand and Australia, also from other clients who employ the advertising services of the organisers.

Further details of this project will appear in due course. Plans of the Building showing full details of sections allocated to the various parts of the Empire and China, sizes of stalls and charges are now ready and can be had by application to the organisers. The Advertising & Publicity Bureau, Ltd. (China and Malaya), whose Head Office is in St. George's Building, Hong Kong, entrance from Chater Road.

This firm was responsible for a most striking Stand representing H.K. and Malaya at the British Advertising Exhibition at Olympia in 1933.

It will be interesting to note that the organisers have secured the support of some prominent and leading men in the Colony, who have accepted an invitation to sit on an Advisory Committee comprised of sixteen people.

The organisers also hope to form a Grand Council of Patronage of the leading personalities and captains of industry in Hong Kong, whose sympathy and support they hope to enlist.

It is hoped that the Firms of Hong Kong will co-operate in making the Fair a permanent asset of increasing value to themselves, to China, to the Colony, and to the British Empire.

BANK OF EAST ASIA

Decline In Profits Reported

A decrease in profits by something like $200,000 was reported at the annual general meeting of the Bank of East Asia which has held on Saturday at the Bank's premises with Sir Shouson Chow in the chair.

Those present at the meeting were: Messrs. Kan Tong Po (Chief Manager), Kan Ying Po (Director), Li Tse Fong (Manager), Li Koon Chun, P. K. Kwok, Wong Yun Tong, Li Lan Sang, and Wong Chu Son. The following shareholders were also present: Messrs. Fun Ping Wah, Kwok Sui Lau, Chow Tung Sang, Tso Ahuk Hon, Chow Chi Nam, Fung Keng Yu, and Li Tung.

Chairman's Speech

In his review of the year Sir Shouson Chow said:

"I am sorry to report that the gross profit for the year has declined by something like $200,000 as compared with that of the previous year; you will see that the difference in net profit is only about $80,000. This is due to a reduction of over $130,000 in General Charges.

"The past year has been a very difficult one, as you are all aware, with no improvement in trade conditions in the Far East. Our earnings have in consequence been affected. I am, however, pleased to say that towards the end of the year some slight improvements were evident, and the outlook in general was more hopeful. The uncertain monetary situation in most parts of the world is, of course, an obstacle to any rapid trade revival, but let us hope that this uncertainty may soon disappear.

Increase in Deposit

"Our Deposit Account shows an increase of over $2,000,000, while there is practically no change in the Loan Account. The increase in the Investment Account is accounted for by the acquisition of $1,640,000 3 1/2 per cent. Hong Kong Government Loan in July last.

"Our cash in hand and in other Banks still remains at a very high ratio in relation to our liabilities under deposits. While it discloses the strong position of our Bank, it also indicates that the outlet for sound advances is still regrettably limited.

"The increase in our Bank Premises Account represents payments to our contractors for the new building which is now nearing completion.

"The Directors feel that you will support their recommendation to pay a bonus of $12,700 to the staff in recognition of their loyal and faithful service during the year.

"The Directors' recommendation of the payment of a dividend of 5% and a bonus of $1 per share is the same as last year.

"With these few remarks I beg to propose that the Report and Accounts as presented be adopted, and that the balance of $785,099.85 standing to the credit of Profit and Loss Account be dealt with as follows:

To pay a Dividend of 5% per share on 55,988 shares absorbing	$335,916.00
To pay a bonus of $1 per share on 55,988 shares absorbing	55,988.00
To pay a bonus to the staff	12,700.00
To carry forward	350,495.85
	$785,099.85

MAN STABBED

Afraid To Talk

A stabbing outrage occurred on Saturday night in Pa Yuen Street, near Argyle Street when Wah Leung, a Chinese male 30 years of age, was sent to the Kowloon Hospital suffering from a stab wound in the back.

It appears from a report that the unfortunate man was walking in the vicinity and was suddenly pounced upon by two men and in the ensuing struggle he was stabbed.

His assailants made good their escape and the wounded man was taken to Kowloon Police Station and subsequently to the Hospital.

When questioned the wounded man refused to say much. Police suspect that he knows more about the trouble and is keeping quiet lest he should be the victim of another attack when he is discharged from hospital.

FATHER BRAVO RELEASED

Set Free By Communists

News has just been received from the Superior of the Dominican Mission at Foochow to the effect that Father E. Bravo, O.P., who had been in the hands of Communists since January 25, 1933, has been set free.

Towards the end of 1932 Father Bravo left Foochow on a tour of inspection, proceeding inland to Yuki, a walled city in the central districts of Fukien Province. While he was there trouble broke out between different political factions and the Government machine became suddenly disorganised.

The Communists thereupon commenced operations in earnest and on January 25 the walls of the little town of Yuki were blown down by a horde of invading Communists, and the Father found himself in the hands of men who would not hesitate to kill him if they found their own lives endangered.

When the news of his capture reached Foochow the Mission there made valiant efforts to get in touch with the Reds and arrange for his release. This unfortunately was impossible owing to the fact that his captors had to be constantly on the move in order to avoid a clash with the Government troops.

In his last letter, which incidentally was two months in transit, Father Bravo said that the bandits were being pursued continuously and were at a loss as to what they should do with their prisoner. Some suggested that they should release him immediately, while others contended that they should hold him until they could negotiate for ransom.

His health, the letter continued, was very poor, as he had had no suitable food since he was captured, and no bed to sleep on. The letter concluded with the poignant phrase, "If this lasts much longer I don't think I shall."

DARING ROBBERY

Woman Victimised On Island Road

Kwok Mui, a 21 year old married woman, employed by Mr. Rose of Tytam Tuk, to carry provisions from Quarry Bay to Tytam, met with a nasty experience on Saturday afternoon on Island Road near Fung Mun Au district.

While she was near the locality a man suddenly came upon her from behind and grabbed hold of her. She struggled and was thrown to the ground. The man then searched her person and extracted a $5 Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank note and decamped. There were no people there at the time and she continued on her way.

A little later she saw the same man following her and gave chase. She met two Indian Constables and told them of what happened. They gave chase and the man was subsequently arrested. At the Police Station he was identified by her as being the man who robbed her of the $5.

INDIA WITHIN THE EMPIRE.

The second reading of the India Bill was carried by 404 votes to 133 after four days' debate. The ruling of the Speaker that there could be only one division brought Mr. Lansbury, with his fervent belief that Indians should frame their own constitution, into the same lobby with Mr. Winston Churchill and his supporters, who hold a diametrically opposite view. The House divided immediately after a speech in which Mr. Baldwin defended with a grave eloquence the statesmanship of the proposals and disposed of the rumours of any early election. These, he admitted, might be fomented by the agreement between parties for the allotment of thirty days to the Committee stage of the Bill. The entry into that arrangement is creditable to both sections of the opposing groups. It throws no doubt upon the sincerity of their objections, but it ensures that the controversy about India shall not obstruct or deny the large programme of purely British legislation that the Government desire to pass.

The House of Commons has upheld the high standard that is the tradition of great occasions at Westminster. The old reproach that the affairs of India were settled in the presence of almost empty benches has no application in existing circumstances. Whatever form the Bill may finally take, every important proposal in it will have been canvassed by a House that has educated itself in Indian matters through years of the most elaborate and detailed inquiry ever given to a constitutional issue. Differences between parties are not slight, but in the heat of a debate following upon intensive propaganda by both sides there has been an unavoidable tendency to exaggerate their extent. There is no party that does not recognise that any change in the form of Indian government must give the Indian people more control of their own affairs. The dissentient Conservatives were taunted with using arguments that led back to the position in India prior to the Montagu-Chelmsford reforms. The actual proposals of the Conservative minority upon the Select Committee justify no such argument. There is no controversy as to the grant of a measure of self-government to India; the query that has to be answered is as to the place of advance. Labour would proceed with less caution than the Government. Mr. Churchill and his friends would lengthen the period of experiment.

A fresh element of controversy was imported into the second reading discussions by Sir Samuel Hoare undertaking to insert an amendment in the Bill to assure India that there has been no drawing back from the Viceroy's announcement that the ultimate goal contemplated for India is the attainment of Dominion Status. Upon his endeavour to allay misgivings expressed in India Mr. Winston Churchill concentrated the weight of his attack. Obligated to confess himself repentant author of the phrase, Mr. Churchill claimed that after the Joint Select Committee had deliberately avoided its use the words were now exhumed and foisted upon the House of Commons. His fear is that the interpretation that would be given to the words would be those of the Statute of Westminster, and would be held to include the right to secede. The reply given in anticipation by Sir Thomas Inskip has a wider application than to India. Every pledge given to that country, he said, relates to the future development of an India within the Empire. Nobody has ever dreamt of a Constitution that could be used to take India out of the Empire. The contest is one as regards words and sentiments rather than present realities, for the conditions in which India could attain the full status of a Dominion cannot be reached in any period measured in less than decades.

If Gossip We Must

(By "PRUDENCE")

Lady Peel was the hostess at a delightful party last Friday, when she welcomed all the staunch supporters of the M.C.L. to a most charming theatrical-tema held in the ballroom at Government House. The performance was given by some of Miss Sawyers young pupils from the Diocesan Girls School and reflects great credit on all concerned. (I rather think that Mrs. Hooper had a great deal to do with getting it up, and thought I saw her at the piano, but was so far back that I cannot be quite sure). There was no clue on the programme to indicate who wrote the words and music of this fantastic and charming little play. It told the story of two children, (cleverly played by Jean Latheam and Phyllis Grose) who rose at dawn to find out what went on in their garden before Human Beings were up and about. They find the statue of Father Time has come to life and 12 pretty children (representing the twelve hours on the clock) are taking his orders for the day. This "Dance of the Hours" was particularly pretty. Then they meet the Spirit of the Garden (the Spirit of Hope, and the Spirit of Labour, charmingly played by Eileen Witchell, Audrey Ho, and Maria da Rosa). Comedy was supplied by Marie Smith as a huge vegetable marrow, and Florence Fowler as a scarecrow. Two poor little slum-children wander through this garden in their dreams, and the play ends by the Mother calling her children in to breakfast, and promising to be friendly in real life their little dream-friends.

At the conclusion Mrs. R. M. Henderson (the President of the M.C.L.) made a most charming and interesting little speech on the work done for this Society, to which Lady Peel made a graceful reply in which she expressed her keen interest in the M.C.L.

Was the Masked-Ball at the U.S.R.C. a success? The answer is in the affirmative. I'll say it was! A record crowd filled the Club on Friday night, the dresses were most gorgeous and the rule of "masks till midnight" rigorously enforced. Not till after we had all paraded and prizes had been allotted were people permitted to unmask. But it is hard for even the cleverest to hide their identity for a whole evening! Little tricks of voice or manner give one away. Most of us knew that the bewitching winner in blue with powdered hair was Miss Forsyth and that the Derby-Day Lady was Mrs. Maclean. The men's prizes were won by Lt. Commander Alexander as an Artist and Major Bonavia as a "Charlady." Among the many parties given that night I fancy Major Malone's was the biggest, as forty people assembled for cocktails and dinner in the "green-suite" of the Peninsula Hotel. It was some party. . . . our Host came as George Robey (complete with eyebrows, stick, and bowler) and during dinner he gave some killingly funny impersonations. Mrs. Hogg played Hostess dressed as a rollicking Sailor-Boy. Mrs. Burnie looked marvellous as the Queen of Sheba. Miss Harris was a Morris Dancer. A table for forty is quite too long for good visibility!—Later we all went on to revel at the U.S.R.C. and found the place packed. I saw Sylvia Morris looking a darling little Neapolitan, and Mrs. Fasken was "super" in "Early Victorian." Mary Taylor, made a dainty Sweet Lavender. Mr. Anthony had his Cleopatra (and I think she was Alwyn Owen-Hughes). Miss Readhead was Japanese, and Captain Walter was Heaven-knows-What! Mrs. Morris was a beautiful Eastern Lady. There is going to be a splendid programme of music at the house of Mrs. W. L. Marshall next Wednesday, March 6th. One of the Colony's most popular American Hostesses . . . she is throwing open her delightful house at 18 Peak Road at 5.30 p.m. for the benefit of the Benevolent Society . . . (a charity that needs all our support in these difficult times). The concert is under the Patronage of Mrs. Charles Hoover, wife of the American Consul General, and I think there will be a rush for tickets which are only a dollar each. The programme is most attractive but I have promised—not to give away all the secrets . . . but I may just tell you that a very charming American visitor will play accordion solo's Mrs. Arnold will be there with her cello, Mrs. Evelyn will be at the piano (and so will Mr. Paul of the American Consulate) and Mrs. Sanger will sing some of her charming songs. It will be a lovely concert and one you should not miss, so don't forget March 6th at 5.30 p.m.

There were a number of people at the Hunt Ball on Saturday night who were having their last fling in the Colony before going off on the Trooper on Sunday and I wonder if their last impressions weren't perhaps a little uncharacteristic of our usually-sober Hong Kong.

Seen at the Races

far as appearance went there was nothing at the Rose Room of the Peninsula on Saturday night to tell the casual spectator whether he was in 'China or in the shires. There were the same delightful women, so beautifully groomed at the beginning of the evening, so slightly trussed at the end; the same pink-coated men slurring increasingly as time went on the 'hunting' G. and the same inevitable indefatigable covert-side noises.

The 'Choir Practice' in fact supper was so convincing that some of the sausage rolls sat up and became quite excited. Alec Potts was heard complaining that one of them turned on him just after the 'Worry' with every circumstance of ferocity.

Seriously, though, we were all rather hysterical. It was the association of ideas and long forgotten memories. Andre's band, and the never failing supplies of snakebite remedy.

The decorations were extraordinarily well carried out. By clever Minna Whitham, they tell me, or at any rate designed by her. We kept ourselves amused trying to fit faces to the 'Hunting' gentleman who swung so uncomfortably in the centre of the room.

There were about a hundred couple "on." The Sheldons' party included H.E. the Governor and Lady Peel, and there were other celebrities too numerous to mention.

Jackie Stocker, whose last night in Hong Kong it was, had brought his young brother (called Big Stocker to distinguish him from Jackie) and I hear that they were successful in keeping up the festivities with 'close harmony' far into the morning. In fact I believe I'm not the only person who heard it.

Alec Potts had the largest party and shewed a remarkable turn of speed until about one a.m., fading out a trifle in the straight. Among his guests were Joan Mollison, 'Fergie' looking as pink as ever, Peggy McAvoy, floating her way through an old-fashioned waltz in delightful burlesque and flashing that quizzical smile of hers, and a throng of hilarious 'strutlers' determined to lift the party to a phenomenal height.

Others I saw were attractive Anne Dodwell so slim and so serious, Audrey Steele in black and what looked like extremely cheerful company, the James Whithams that very striking looking pair, and James Fennell the Field Master 'halloing to view' by himself in a corner.

Yvonne Shenton was 'in colour' for the occasion and the Fair sisters were just as definitely 'in form'. Mrs. Paton in black was perhaps the most striking personality on the floor; I just love that faint American accent.

Mrs. Wilson was there in white; I think you probably haven't met her yet but she is quite one of the most charming of the hunting ladies and goes very straight. The two Crapnell girls, Vera and Helen, were making very nearly their first appearance. In Hong Kong, since their return from England. Several people who had to be up and off in the Somersetshire early next morning looked in to say goodbye—Captain 'Dumpy' Dunlop, and Bill Tyndall among them—its a wonder we managed to keep so cheerful with that particular separation hanging over us. But we shook them by the hand and we drank their healths and we wished we were going with them and we comforted ourselves with the realization that there are a lot of good 'scouts' still left in the Colony and what with one thing and another I shouldn't be surprised if it wasn't rather a hiccupy 'strutty' hunt this afternoon.

"NEW CHINA POLICY" OF JAPAN

Anglo-American Interest In Far East Situation

Tokyo, Mar. 2.

If China desires co-existence and co-prosperity with Japan this country will extend every possible financial and economic assistance to China in expectation of her "emancipation from all international yokes." This, according to the "Osaka Mainichi," is one of the points of what it describes as the "new China policy" on which Mr. Hirota, the Japanese Foreign Minister, will embark on March 27.

The "Osaka Mainichi" gives several other points:—(1) Japan will extend every necessary support to China provided the Republic shows a desire to "normalise" Sino-Japanese relations by "subduing the anti-Japanese boycott and fulfilling other conditions;" (2) The extent of the political and financial aid given by Japan "will be in direct ratio to China's friendly actions towards Japan;" (3) With the promotion of friendly relations China must respect Japan's treaty rights and concessions; (4) In any new agreement with other Powers concerning tariffs, trade, extrajurisdiction or navigation "China must not jeopardise her relations with Japan;" (5) Although Japan has no desire to participate as a third-party in a loan to China, "she cannot remain disinterested if a scheme is involved which affects the political situation in the Far East."

Japanese reports assert that at the meeting of Mr. William Phillips, U.S. Under-Secretary of State and the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, the latter suggested an international loan to China and describe this move as calculated to "frustrate" the proposed rapprochement between Chinese and Japanese official circles.

They maintain that—"Sino-Japanese co-operation is essential to the preservation of peace in East Asia in particular, and the world in general," and express disappointment that such co-operation should be looked upon "with jaundiced eyes by Britain and the United States."

INTERNATIONAL LOAN

London, Mar. 2.

The "Daily Herald's" diplomatic correspondent says that it is reported from Washington that the British Ambassador suggested to the United States State Department that an international loan to China might be advisable, on which he comments that the move is intended as a counter-stroke to Japanese activity at Nanking, but that it comes pretty late—probably too late.

It is being suggested that China should be told that under the Consortium Agreement of 1920 and the Nine-Power Treaty she had no right to accept a loan from Japan or any other single Power.

It seems doubtful whether either Japan or China will take any notice of such a move.

WORLD'S SHIPPING TROUBLES

International Pool Suggestions

The Preliminary International Conference on the Rationalization of Shipping, which has been sitting in London, concluded its deliberations after a very important week's work. It was officially announced in the evening that a draft scheme had been prepared for submission to the national associations in the countries represented without in any way committing them during its consideration. Certain alternative suggestions, it was added, would be the subject of careful study by the secretariat and a fuller communication is to be issued in the course of a few days.

Behind the formal statements, writes "The Times" correspondent, lies the knowledge that throughout that week representatives of shipping associations in fifteen countries have been considering how the present supply of shipping could be adjusted to the reduced demand consequent on the decline in international agreement, and that these discussions have met with such success that an international pooling scheme has been prepared. Such a plan, if it receives the approval of the representative shipping associations in the various maritime countries and is accorded the support of the respective Governments, will be one of the greatest developments in shipping that have ever been brought about.

Supply and Demand

Quite simply, the owners of all ships in trade would contribute by the terms of the scheme to an international fund for the compensation of serviceable vessels for which there was no employment. The contributions and the methods of calculating the payments to be made for different classes of ships have been considered.

SIAMESE KING ABDICATES

Feeling Of Sad Relief

London, Mar. 3.

It is announced from Cranleigh that the King of Siam officially handed his abdication to the delegation at 4.30 p.m. yesterday.

Probably never before has the abdication of a King been announced with so little formality. The first official announcement was made to journalists in the Private Secretary's room at Knowle Park. The Secretary, clad in country clothes with a pullover and grey flannel trousers, explained the document of abdication of four typewritten pages signed by the King and not witnessed.

KING OF SIAM

The document, will be officially published in Siam as a letter to the nation which sets out the condition the King made for resumption of the throne which is based on the establishment of true democratic principles, including liberty of speech and writing, freedom at public meetings and political organisations, Incorporation Act for safeguarding the constitution in the Criminal Code and political offences tried in the ordinary court, amnesty for political prisoners, reinstatement of officials dismissed on suspicion of political offences and prohibition of active Army and Navy officers from participating in politics.

The Secretary said that the King's feelings were of sad relief. He will take the title of Prince of Sukhodaya under which he travelled incognito. He will stay at Cranleigh until June in clearing up business, after which he may take up residence abroad, possibly Switzerland.

KING INTERVIEWED

The King of Siam gave a brief interview to Reuter on the lawn at Knowle Park with the Queen standing by, smiling shyly and toying with a handkerchief. The King refused to discuss politics. He said that he liked the English countryside. He had done a lot of motoring and may take a holiday now.

Neither the King nor the Queen showed any signs of the strain of the last few weeks, but the King admitted that he was feeling rather tired.

Reuter.

Arrangements would be made with Governments to collect special tonnage dues from all ships entering the ports of their countries, and these sums would be entrusted to an international body formed to work the scheme. This international association would endeavour to establish a fair relationship between the supply of the tonnage and the demand for it and would constantly watch the situation. Voyages that were utterly uneconomic would, so far as possible, be avoided. By the withdrawal of ships whose presence in the freight markets was always depressing rates the earning power of the shipping industry would be restored to it, with advantage to all associated industries. If, as is hoped, international commerce gradually increases ships which it had been decided to lay up as being surplus to the existing requirements would, as the opportunity occurred, be brought back to service. On the other hand, the prospects of some vessels for employment might seem so unfavourable, although they were actually capable of rendering service, that the best course would be to scrap them and compensate their owners.

MILITARY REVOLT IN GREECE

Attempt To Overthrow The Government Fails

Athens, March 2.

Martial law was proclaimed here following an attempted coup d'état by the military last night. The fleet is in the hands of the insurgents. Five warships managed to get away on the high seas.

A battalion of the Republican Guard is reported to have joined the insurrectionary movement. Government forces were sent against them and after fierce fighting, in which artillery was used against the rebels, the latter were forced to surrender. Subsequently the Government issued a proclamation stating that the insurrection had been quelled.

ADMIRALS LEAD REBELS

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press").

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, March 3, 4.30 a.m.)

Athens, Mar. 2.

A desperate attempt by the military followers of the former General Plastiras to overthrow the Government appears to have been miscarried, but despite the Government's efforts to minimise last night's events there is little doubt that the outbreak was far more serious than the authorities are willing to admit. The revolt was initiated by officers of the crack regiment of guards and military college at Athens.

One group of rebels was led by the retired admiral, Demesticha and Vice-Admiral Kollakakis who succeeded in occupying the naval arsenal in Salamis and taking command of five warships including the pride of the Greek Navy, the 10,000-ton cruiser Giogios Averoff. The five vessels steamed out of harbour but destroyers and bombing planes took up the pursuit early on Saturday morning. In the ensuing fight the cruiser, Giogios Averoff was badly damaged by being hit amidships by two bombs, while on the Government side one destroyer was disabled and two bombers brought down by the rebel anti-aircraft guns. The planes were compelled to return to the base early in the afternoon in order to get another supply of bombs. The air force and fleet were given strict orders to sink the rebel ships if necessary, but it is believed that the continued attack by bombers will force the mutineers to surrender sooner or later.

REVOLT SUPPRESSED

The loyal troops had meanwhile stormed the barracks of the mutinous regiment and after sanguinary fighting regained possession of the Salamis arsenal, and the Government announced in a proclamation issued late in the afternoon that the revolt "instigated by some scatterbrained officers" has been completely suppressed by loyal troops.

A state of siege has been proclaimed in Athens but it is stressed, in official quarters that complete quiet is prevailing throughout the country. The naval authorities, however, have taken the precaution of sinking two vessels at the entrance of the harbour of Salonica in order to prevent warships stationed there from joining the mutineers.

General Plastiras who is believed to be the organiser of the revolt is reported to be staying in Cannes on the French Riviera, having lived there in exile since his abortive coup d'état in March, 1933.

M. Venizelos, who is at present in Crete, has identified himself with the rebels. Meanwhile the Cabinet, after proclaiming a curfew at 10 p.m. until early morning, is busy appointing a court martial tribunal to try the rebels already detained.

The Government has resolved that unless the rebel warships surrender to-morrow, the Air Force will bomb them heavily for which purpose three bombers are standing by with bombs weighing two hundred pounds. The leader of today's aircraft pursuit says that the cruiser Averoff fired about a hundred rounds at the planes without making a direct hit and also fired on the planes with machine guns.

VALUE OF THE DOLLAR

Views Of American Monetary Expert

Boston, March 2.

The dollar is ridiculously undervalued in terms of sterling, declared a monetary expert, Dr. Sprague, addressing the Foreign Policy Association. He added that the dollar was also undervalued in comparison with European gold currencies.

He thought the present decline in sterling was not initiated by the British Treasury and was a necessary development before any sterling and dollar stabilisation was possible. It is hopeless to expect the present American administration to value the dollar upwards, but any declaration that there will be no further devaluation will lead only to import two thousand million more dollars worth of gold.

Dr. Sprague recommended temporary and tentative stabilisation which would not discard the possibility of a change.

DR. ANTON RINTELIN ON TRIAL

Austrian Revolt Events Recalled

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, March 2, 4.30 p.m.)

Vienna, Mar. 2.

One of the most sensational political trials ever held in Austria, that of the former Austrian minister to Rome, Dr. Anton Rintelen on charges of high treason, began before the court martial here on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. Rintelen who was proclaimed Federal Chancellor by the July insurrectionists is accused of having been one of the guiding spirits in the revolt and attempted to commit suicide when the putsch failed but has so far recovered that the physicians had pronounced his conditions satisfactory apart from the symptoms of paralysis in the left hand.

The trial has awakened unusual interest abroad, no less than 250 foreign correspondents having applied for admission to the court room but only 50 of these can be accommodated since only 200 spectators can be seated. 150 seats being reserved for Austrian journalists, officials and politicians. The trial is expected to last about one week.

ATTACK ON CHANCELLERY

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, March 3, 4.30 a.m.)

Vienna, Mar. 2.

Tense excitement prevailed in the crowded court as the public prosecutor began reading the indictment on the opening of the trial on Saturday of the former Austrian Minister to Rome, Rintelen on charges of high treason. Rintelen whose left arm was in a sling, listened with complete lack of emotion to the serious charge accusing him of having had previous knowledge of the plans for the attack on the Chancellery on July 25 and aiding and abetting same by offering his services to the ringleaders and informing the revolutionary government. This constituted high treason which is punishable by life imprisonment, proceeded the public prosecutor, who added that to prove that Rintelen had had connection with the insurgents was difficult, most of the evidence being of a circumstantial nature.

Outlining the evidence on which the charges are based, the public prosecutor stated that the first news broadcast by the putschists was that the Dollfuss cabinet had resigned and that the Government had been taken over by Rintelen, whilst a proclamation to the same effect was read to the officials in the Chancellery. It has not, however, been possible to find out who was responsible for naming Rintelen in this connection. A further ground for suspicion was the fact that Rintelen on hearing himself named in the broadcast as the new Chancellor did nothing to assure Dollfuss of his loyalty. Another piece of evidence was the letter accused wrote to his wife before his attempt to commit suicide was also incompatible with the exceptional energy and mental clarity of accused if his conscience had been clear.

The President of the Court then asked accused if he pleaded guilty to the charge of high treason to which Rintelen answered "No."

RINTELIN'S EXAMINATION

In the course of his examination during which he spoke haltingly and correcting himself frequently, Rintelen, on being questioned as to his attitude towards the Dollfuss Government and National Socialism, declared that it was naturally his duty to support the Dollfuss Government. Regarding National Socialism, he held the opinion that an attempt should be made to find a compromise, while retaining the Austrian standpoint. He had therefore, with Dollfuss's approval, negotiated with the National Socialists and had repeatedly recommended giving the opposition a share in the Government. Accused denied that there had been differences of opinion between himself and Dollfuss, asserting that three weeks before his death the latter Chancellor had asked him if he was prepared to accept the post of Minister to Berlin.

After a brief further examination, the doctors testified that accused was in an exhausted condition, and the proceedings were adjourned until Monday.

S. CHINA "A" OUT OF SHIELD

(BY "PIVOT").

Living up to their reputation as the team who are always capable of upsetting S. This is a signal honour for the Club as this is the League leaders first defeat this season.

St. Joseph's College played well on Saturday to beat Kowloon by the odd goal in three. Tsang the College custodian was given marching orders in the second half for allegedly striking a player. Lincolns by their defeat of the Police by the odd goal in five cast a shadow of doubt over the Police team's capabilities in the Semi-Final Senior Shield.

In the second Division Lincolns lost their 100 per cent. record. Yesterday's only senior game resulted in a easy victory for S. China "A" against the Gunners by four clear goals.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS SENIOR DIVISION

R.A. 0; S. CHINA "A" 4
With a very much depleted team the Gunners went down to South China "A" by four clear goals. Owing to several players leaving by the S.S. Somersetshire, a reshuffle of the team was made and the usual understanding and combination was lacking.

The opening exchanges were even and it was after the game had progressed for some time that Tam Kong Pak made a solo effort, his shot striking the bar for Tsui to net from the rebound. The very next minute Ip Pak Wah scored after receiving from Tam.

After lemon time the Gunners played up well but the forwards were slow. Ng Po Kui raced down the field to centre well for Tam to put S. China three up. Following a nice combination movement initiated on the Chinese right Tam again scored.

The game deteriorated somewhat towards the close and the final whistle found the tams struggling in midfield.

HOCKEY

Caer Clark Cup Tournament

CHAMPIONS HELD BY RECREIO

The Hong Kong Ladies were given a surprise when they met the Recreio Ladies in a Caer Clark Cup Tournament encounter and were held to a goalless draw at King's Park on Saturday.

A feature of the game was the brilliant defence of the Recreio. The forwards of the champions were most disappointing, in spite of the countless opportunities they were given to score.

Miss Z. Barros, playing at third back for the Recreio was outstanding, saving her side from many anxious moments. Miss Osmund also played a good defensive game.

The Hong Kong Ladies had to thank Miss Heibling and Miss Gray for the fine display they put up. Led by Miss Silva-Netto, the Recreio inside trio were extremely dangerous.

The Recreio played better than the champions, both in attack and defence, and they were unlucky not to have won.

ST. ANDREW'S DRAW WITH "Y"

After leading by 3 goals to nil at the interval, the St. Andrew's ladies were forced to a draw by the "Y" ladies at King's Park on Saturday. The score of the game was 3 all.

Miss E. Thompson, playing at centre-half for the "Y" was the best player on the field, and it was due to her vigorous and brilliant display that the "Y" were able to level up with Saints. At their defence, Miss J. Wilson played a sound game. Although the forward line seemed to be at sea in the first half they recovered very well in the second.

The first goal scored by the Saints was through Miss P. Gittins, who shot with a hard drive, receiving a pass from Mrs. White. Mrs. White scored the second 15 minutes later from the edge of the circle. The same player scored just before the interval arrived.

At the resumption, the "Y" played with renewed vigour and they were seen to be on the offensive very often.

After constant pressure S. Dalziel scored. S. Fowler scored two more for the "Y" to force the game to a draw when the final whistle was sounded.

His hut was ransacked for about half an hour, the robbers making off with jewellery and other property valued at about $200. The four men made good their escape.

Roughly five hours previously, Man Kwai-lam, aged 32, a farmer residing in an un-numbered hut in the same village, was robbed of $50 and some jewellery by three Chinese males armed with revolvers. They also made good their escape.

WEEK-END FOOTBALL

Club lost many opportunities through dilly-dallying. Sabhan netted in the first half after the Club's defence was harrowed. After the interval Club missed a penalty. Cheung Lim Hong and Kwok Ying Way increased the lead.

The Lincoln's second division eleven received a surprise at Sookunpoo yesterday when the Royal Engineers beat them by one goal to nil.

There was no score in the first half, but five minutes from the restart the Engineers netted the only goal of the game, following a smart attack on the left wing and a fierce struggle in front of goal. Howlett received the chance and netted. The Lincolns forwards then put up the best show of the encounter in an endeavour to equalise. Rush and Dodds were busy attempting to pass the Sappers sturdy defence, but it was only on rare occasions that they succeeded, and then Seliek, in the Engineers goal, was always on the alert and made brilliant saves.

THIRD DIVISION

The Royal Ordnance Corps were too good for the Railway whom they defeated by six clear goals. Prince (3), Routledge, Duffield and McQueen were the marksmen.

Airforce trounced the Police in a very listless encounter by three goals to one. Dockerty, Beecham and Gregory scored for the Airmen and Chan Chul for the Police.

E. Lanes maintained their lead in the third division when they were victorious against the Engineers by three goals scored by Sandford (2) and Thorpe.

Lincolns bowed to the Service Corps by four goals to one thereby conceding their position in the table. Beasley (3), and Eycott scored for the Corps and Wardle for the Lincolns.

RECREIO AT CANTON

During the week end the Club de Recreio made a trip to Canton and played two matches there.

On Saturday they were pitted against a combined team representing the Army, Navy, Airforce and the Lingnan University and emerged victors by 5 goals to one.

B. Gosano, Delgado, Gomes, Alves and Beltrao (penalty) scored for the Recs and a Varsity player scored for the Chinese team.

Yesterday they met a stronger opposition in the team of China Athletic (Canton) and lost by the only goal.

They had the misfortune to lose T. Castilho during the first few minutes of the game with a sprained ankle.

Ng Kan Po scored for the Chinese Bowen and A. V. Gosano played well in defence.

FRIENDLY GAMES

CLUB SENIOR v NAVY

The Navy seniors drew with the Club in a friendly cricket match at King's Park.

The Club batted first and totalled 166 for 5 wickets, H. Owen Hughes scoring 83, which included eight boundaries.

The Navy replied with 8 wickets for 75 runs when stumps were drawn.

The scores were:—Club:—166 for 5 dec. (H. Owen Hughes 83, E. R. Duckitt 30, Lt. Douglas 2 for 35, Lt. Newson 2 for 42).

Navy:—75 for 8 (Lt. Bramwell 25, Mid. Sturdee 20, G. R. M. Ricketts 3 for 23, T. M. L. Redmond 2 for 8, T. A. Pearce 2 for 13).

CLUB JUNIORS WIN

The Hong Kong Cricket Club juniors defeated the Royal Navy by four wickets in a friendly cricket match on the Club ground.

Owing to low-scoring, 2 innings by each side were played.

The scores were:—Royal Navy:—1st innings 37 (Lt. Com. Bessant 12, W. Keith Robinson 4 for 18, G. A. Millbank 5 for 16).

2nd innings 59 (Humphries 20, J. E. Potter 3 for 7, L. D. Kilbee 3 for 20).

Club 1st innings 48 for 8 wickets (H. J. Armstrong 37 not out), Cousins 5 for 33, Humphries 3 for 19).

2nd innings 127 for 8 wickets (S. Purbes 20, G. E. Gaghan 21).

LOCAL RUGGER

Vounteers Beat Army

The Hong Kong Volunteers defeated the Army by two goals and two tries (18 points) to two goals (10 points) in their Annual Rugby encounter on the Club ground on Saturday.

The winners were best served by their fly-half and scrum-half, Turner and Millar who set their three-quarters in motion with splendid openings.

The Army pack held their own in the tight scrum but were beaten in the loose, where Walkden, Bradford and Cumming shone.

Hunter played a fairly safe game at full-back, but in the opening half he fumbled on several occasions.

McGillchrist was somewhat subdued, while Lammert was weak at the start. Floyd, the Army right-wing three-quarter, played an outstanding game and displayed a fine burst of speed, easily evading McGillchrist and Lammert, while Davies, his centre-three-quarter gave him all the necessary support.

Lewis, the Army fly-half, played a good game, often breaking through only to be smothered at the crucial moment. Hamilton worked hard, but was a trifle slow for Millar.

Rigg worked hard and was unlucky not to have broken through on several occasions, while his winger, Peers, gave a very poor display; in the second half Munro was substituted, and this wing then became the most dangerous part of the Volunteer attack.

Walkden, Cumming and Bradford were the pick of the forwards.

Metcalf was not seen to much advantage at the Army back division, except on rare occasions, when he crossed to effect a tackle.

Lt. Harrison, and L/Cpl. Harrison were the best among the Army forwards, while Barraclough and Hall were prominent in the rushes.

SHANGHAI MARKET COMMENT

Feb. 27, 1935.

The local rubber share market failed to respond last Tuesday to the steadiness of the raw material markets resulting from the favourable gold clause decision. The general market remained neglected and in the group of debentures, sellers predominated. Wednesday was exceedingly dull, no transactions at all were recorded in the rubber section and in the general market the whole business done amounted to 200 Chinese Engineering and Mining. Realty Investment and Shanghai Water Works 7% Preferred. On the following day the situation was more or less the same since the most important factor influencing the market, the unusual tightness of money, did not improve. Owing to a rise in exchange Shanghai Water Works stock dropped to 520, a decline of 15 points from the last rate. During Thursday's session business was practically at a standstill. Shanghai Power 5 1/2% Debentures closed at 89.50, Marden 6% at 85, or five points below the listed normal quotation. There was nothing worth while to report on the markets on Saturday and Monday of this week. A few Shanghai Power 6% Preference shares were sold at 130 on Monday and 250 Ewo Mills were done at 9 and 1,000 Tebongs at 47. On the Chinese Government Bond Market 23rd Year Customs continued to be in the foreground. While some of the other issues registered small gains, this issue slumped heavily resulting in considerably lower quotations.

PRODUCER TO ABANDON HIS PLANS

London, Mar. 2. The film and theatre world has been startled by the sudden announcement that the manager-producer, Charles B. Cochran, has abandoned all his extensive production plans as a sequel to a dispute with British Equity.

Mr. Cochran recently brought six important plays from New York for production in London this year. "If I cannot get casts I cannot produce," he said.

A British Equity official has made a statement regretting the decision and is of the opinion that plays are bound to be produced in all the London theatre in Jubilee year and hence actors will not be unemployed.

THE SHARE MARKET

Harriman's Weekly Report

Mr. G. A. Harriman's weekly share report and market review issued at noon on Saturday states:—

The market was very dull during the week under review and prices were generally easier with business on a rather restricted scale, due to no small measure to the uncertainty of exchange. Investment issues ruled much easier with Wharves done at $108 cash and at $109 for March. Hong Kong Lands after business at $49 had sellers at this rate. Star Ferries were offering at $93, and Hong Kong Electric came to business at $71 1/4. Telephones (old) changed hands in small parcels at $25.30, but closed easier with sellers at $25.25, the new shares however were in demand at $10.40. Dairy Farms were rather neglected with sellers at $23 1/2. Trans were offering at $19.10. With the exception of Hotels which changed hands at climbing rates from $5 to $5.10, minor issues showed an easier tendency with Providents (old) on offer at $12.5 and Cements at $1.95. China Lights showed very little change with sales effected at $10.00/10. Owing to the sharp rise in Exchange (business done at 1/11 1/2 8) Hong Kong Banks receded to $1380 after business done at $1380/1415, with Unions offering freely at $435, after sales at this rate. The tone of the market at the close is dull with signs of an easier tendency due principally to the exceptional firmness of exchange.

Business during the week has been done at the following prices:— Hong Banks, $1380/1415.
Bank of East Asia, $92 1/2.
Canton Insurance, $255/250.
Union Insurance, $435/440.
Underwriters, $145/150.
Hotels, $5.00/5.10.
Hong Kong Lands, $49.
H.K. Lands 4% Debentures, $102.

Telephones (new), $10.50.

Hong Kong Trams, $19.30.
Wharves, $108.
Watsons, $35.5.
Star Ferries, $93.
China Lights, $10.00/10.10.
Cements, $2.00.
Providents (new), 15 cts.
Ewo, $8.80/9.30.
Antamoks, 88 cts./88 cts.
Gold Rivers, 21 1/2 cts.
Baguio Consolidated, 14 cts.
Constructions (new), 50 cts.

BERLIN BOURSE

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

Berlin, Mar. 2.

Though the sharemarket was not very active at the week-end the prices showed an upward tendency with the public and operators buying. Fixed interest securities were also brighter. Call money was at 3 1/2.

Prices on the sharemarket closed much higher at the end of the week than at the beginning. The turnover was not great at any time but the completion of the great conversion operation which is now extended to State and provincial city loans and obligations cleared the atmosphere of uncertainty and restored confidence.—

REICHSBANK RETURN

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

Berlin, Mar. 2.

The Reichsbank return for February 28 issued on Saturday reveals as the most striking feature the considerable increase in the note issue which, however, has no cause for wonder seeing that on the one hand the return was made up on the last day of the month when the Reichsbank resources were heavily drawn on to effect the monthly settlements and on the other the franc notes in the Saar territory were exchanged for Reichsmarks. Gold-stock increased 0.1 million marks to 80.1, while foreign currencies were unchanged at 4.8, making the total increase of 0.1 to 84.7 million marks. Note issue increased 284.3 to 3617.4 million marks.—
